East Hardwick Seeks Village Center Designation

by Doug McClure

EAST HARDWICK — Standing at the intersection of Cedar and Main in East Hardwick, one can see a range of historically significant structures, whose appearance has not changed significantly since the days when this was a thriving commercial center. The former Hardwick Inn, the old Post Office, the former McFeters store, and many other buildings are barely changed from their original appearance. The elementary school from years past is now home to a chiropractic office. Unlike Hardwick, East Hardwick never had multiple fire trams pass of its streets. The main missing piece to the covered bridge, long since replaced. One part of that past is in Cleland, Orange #9. It is the longest-ops opening bridge in New England. Granges are an old New England tradition. The National Grange was founded in 1867 and describes itself as a non-profit, non-partisan, non-sectarian organization that advocates for rural Americans and agriculture. The East Hardwick Grange says their structure is over 100 years old.

adding an accessible entry to the building and an elevator. Michaels says during the process it became clear a Village Center designation would be helpful.

The Vermont Village Center Designation program offers incentives to many benefits. According to a fact sheet from the Agency of Commerce and Community Development (ACCD), the following benefits are a part of the designation:

- 10% historic tax credits, available as an add-on to federal historic tax credits, with eligible costs for including both interior and exterior work, including, but not limited to, plumbing and electrical repairs;
- 25% historic tax credits for eligible, available for up to $50,000;
- 50% code improvement tax credit, available for up to $50,000 for elevators and sprinklers and electrical work for including ADA modifications such as the ones the Kneassville electric and plumbing;
- 50% technology tax credits available for up to $30,000 for installation and network installations and heating/ventilation/air conditioning; and

Hardwick Town Meeting Passes Town Budget

by Doug McClure and Elijah Law-Sem

HARDWICK — About eight hours turned out for the 2018 Hardwick Town Meeting on March 7, 2018. Together, they expressed democracy not in high or low turnout, but in the way they voted, article by article.

Paul Winkler characterized the turnout as "about normal."

Winkler, Elementary's sixth grade provided lunch, with proceeds to benefit the school's projects.

Most of the twenty-three articles passed unanimously, with or without debate, including: re-election of town officers; school district directors; funding for the Greensboro Nursing Home; AWARE; the Hardwick Historical Society (HHS); the Northeast Kingdom Community Services; Northeast King County Health Services; Justice Center; the Hardwick Area Food Pantry; Calais Area Health and Wellness; Hardwick Community Center; Council and the Area League on Aging for Northeast Vermont.

Town Historian Roxanne Hussey said the HHS stood up to thank the town for its support.

Article 1 was the proposed FY 18 budget for Hardwick. Town manager Jon Jewett gave a speech on the ferent town proposals for the past year. After setting the tone with a humorous reference to his age, Jewett discussed the select board's work of the past year. He mentioned the new water line running from Church Street to Vermont Avenue, the waste water project intended to improve that forty-year old facility, and the South Main Street sidewalk project.

Jewett said the town is working out the best approach to new water rates, stressing the need to get it right the first time, with a target goal for having most of the new meters installed by July. He said the preparation and planning steps had already started the town water.

"I don't want to speak for the select board, but I think I have feeling that what everybody has here today to do every day to try and make your life better," he said.

The yellow barn was Jewett's main focus.

"We're at the tail end of a feasibility study... we're already negotiating with some industries that may be willing to go in there and invest significant amounts of money," he said.

Jewett said he expected the project to be a good source of new jobs and that it might have a net gain of $2.3 million in economic impact.

Select board chair Eric Remick took the floor next to address questions concerning the budget.

"Last year, somebody told us we don't need to go through the entire budget line by line because you can't read so I'm taking that into account," said Remick, showing the summary chart for the proposed budget.

For FY 2018, the town estimates a tax rate of $0.117, an $1.1766 per $100, a $4 difference over the 2018 rates on a $100,000 home.

Remick went on to discuss the main points of the budget which included an increase in the highway department budget to meet new storm water regulations, an increase in the police department budget for an additional officer, and an increase in line items to contribute to capital funds and improve roads and maintenance.

Remick said the increase in highway budgeting is largely due to the Clean Water Act's storm water requirements.

The 12.8% increase in police budgeting is due to the hiring of an additional officer. The cost to the town is $125,000. The cost to the state is $125,000 federal by law to help the town and the police force.

The payment for the water line between the town and the grant. It will pay for the water line between the town and the grant. It will pay for the water line between the town and the grant. It will pay for the water line between the town and the grant.

Many people were interested in when the select board came up for the figures for the town's water rate, which Remick and chair Eric Remick said they would be able to account for a "worst case scenario" in the future. Remick said he was not a preliminary screening of candidates.

Ochran said the actual number will vary based on the candidate. "The new hire could be someone who is brand new and fresh out of school, or it could be somebody with years of experience, so we don't really know what the salary is going to be on the benefit side."

Legislature Approves 'Extreme Risk' Bills with Unanimous Vote

by Doug McClure

MONTEPELIER — In an historic moment for the Vermont Senate, the legislative body passed S. 221, a bill designed to tackle the problem of gun violence by allowing judges to issue orders to restrict the gun rights of individuals who are deemed to be a danger to themselves or others.

As passed by the Senate, the bill would allow judges to issue orders to restrict the gun rights of individuals who are deemed to be a danger to themselves or others.
