

Wolcott Town Vote Tonight

By Doug McClure
WOLCOTT — A Special Town Meeting Vote will be held today, August 14, at 6 p.m. at the Wolcott Town Office. The vote on the new Town Administrator position may require a majority of 60 percent and a planning.

The town administrator will be the only town administrator in the state. The vote will be held on the new Town Administrator position, which may require a majority of 60 percent and a planning. The town administrator will be the only town administrator in the state. The vote will be held on the new Town Administrator position, which may require a majority of 60 percent and a planning.

definition duties. I have a growing concern for the town's well-being and the local economy. This is the only town administrator in the state. The vote will be held on the new Town Administrator position, which may require a majority of 60 percent and a planning.

Wolcott expressed my concern that with an early transition of the town administrator, the town administrator will be the only town administrator in the state. The vote will be held on the new Town Administrator position, which may require a majority of 60 percent and a planning.

On August 12, 11:30 AM the top floor of what remained of the Carr House collapsed into the street. The house could not be salvaged in a way that would allow it to be used as a museum. Photo by Doug McClure.

Carr House Finally Down

By Doug McClure

HARDWICK — On Monday, August 12, the final remains of the Carr House, a historic building, collapsed into the street. The house could not be salvaged in a way that would allow it to be used as a museum.

As the structure collapsed and hit the building from both sides, the structure fell into the street. The house could not be salvaged in a way that would allow it to be used as a museum.

As the structure collapsed and hit the building from both sides, the structure fell into the street. The house could not be salvaged in a way that would allow it to be used as a museum.

The house did not give up any fire, even though a residential fire started and the wind was fresh.

The curious result was that the house did not give up any fire, even though a residential fire started and the wind was fresh.

The curious result was that the house did not give up any fire, even though a residential fire started and the wind was fresh.

Voters Nix Temporary ATV Ordinance

By Anne Plafon Cook

CHAPELWICK — By a 100 to 80 vote, Chatham County voters voted down the temporary ATV ordinance adopted by the board of commissioners on May 7, 2013. The temporary ATV ordinance, which would have taken effect because of the vote, is null and void.

The board now has the option to re-vote on the ordinance with new restrictions and which, however, will not be re-voted on until the next election. The ordinance was approved by the board of commissioners on May 7, 2013. The temporary ATV ordinance, which would have taken effect because of the vote, is null and void.

The board now has the option to re-vote on the ordinance with new restrictions and which, however, will not be re-voted on until the next election. The ordinance was approved by the board of commissioners on May 7, 2013. The temporary ATV ordinance, which would have taken effect because of the vote, is null and void.

David Johnson, a middle school teacher from Woodbury, completed a 100-mile bicycle ride from Woodbury to the Continental Divide on August 8. The high point of the trip was on July 22, when he crossed the Continental Divide in Colorado.

Cross-Country Biker Returns

By Jim Pitt

WOODBURY — A local school teacher has finished a 100-mile bicycle ride across the Continental Divide. The ride was completed on August 8, 2013. The high point of the trip was on July 22, when he crossed the Continental Divide in Colorado.

Johnson began his ride on May 22. He finished his destination on August 2. For part of the journey, he had to ride on the road. The ride was completed on August 8, 2013. The high point of the trip was on July 22, when he crossed the Continental Divide in Colorado.

Superintendent Doubts Merged Schools Will Close

By Michael Bostwick

HARDWICK — Alan Rosenberg, the new District Superintendent of the New Haven District, expressed his doubts about the possibility of closing schools in the district. He said that the district is not ready to close schools.

Starting in the 2012-2013 year and from then on, no school year will be closed unless that is approved by the school board. He said that the district is not ready to close schools.

One of the main opponents of the plan is the New Haven District. He said that the district is not ready to close schools.

He said that the district is not ready to close schools.

He said that the district is not ready to close schools.

He said that the district is not ready to close schools.

CCA Notified to Vacate Willey Building; Grant Policy Approved

By Bill Watson

CAROL — A bulk of sufficient space for municipal storage, particularly for the town's trucks, will be the subject of a grant policy approved by the town's select board. The grant policy will allow the town to use the Willey Building for storage.

The grant policy will allow the town to use the Willey Building for storage. The grant policy will allow the town to use the Willey Building for storage.

The building by the Willey House will be sold August 17 at the Auction House. Photo by Michael Bostwick.

hardwickgazette.com
 In Sports, 10
 BILLINGSLEY IS JERRY SEYMOUR'S FAVORITE

In Towns, 2
 COME HILL OVERLOOK
 CHERRY TALKS SECOND

In Arts, 6
 SCAM MOVIES
 MUSIC REVIEWS

In Arts, 6
 SCAM MOVIES
 MUSIC REVIEWS

In Arts, 6
 SCAM MOVIES
 MUSIC REVIEWS

In Arts, 6
 SCAM MOVIES
 MUSIC REVIEWS

In Arts, 6
 SCAM MOVIES
 MUSIC REVIEWS